INTERESTED PARTY.

How solicitous the fellow. For your family and your wife! To care for them he thinks should be the object of your life. He preaches up his purpose high. In every time and season. He's a life insurance agent—That's the reason.

Economy he speaks about. As though a virtue line. And very anxious, too, he is. That you should fall in line. He wants to have a dime a day. Saved with no intention. That later on you can apply. On his commission.

When you are busy with your work. He drops in for a chat. About the chance you have to die. And pleasant things like that. And why you should insure at once. A duty thus fulfilling. And should you want to sign right there. He's very willing.

It doesn't bother him though you. May take too large a bite. Although he knows to keep it up. Will keep you up at night. Though you may cut amusements down. And skip yourself on raiment. Just so he gets commission on. Each payment.

Not Ready For Emergencies.

"Come, take a ride in my airship."
"No, I didn't bring my bathing suit along."

Smiling May.
When May is cold. And most severe. You can't be fond. When she's around. Your spirits sink. With vague unrest. As on the brink. You hang depressed. You're feeling blue. Because your girl. You've cut in two. To buy the coal. Next winter's fire. In check to hold. It feeds the fire. When May is cold.

Easy Variety.
"What kind of fish you got?" asked the pert drummer.
"Any kind you want," replied the pretty waitress.
"Going some for a small town, isn't it?"
"Not so much. We have a big carp back in the kitchen, and we can cut from that any variety you have a mind to name."

Place to Complain.
"Men in high places are tramping on the constitution!" thundered the street corner orator.
"What are you kicking to us about it for?" demanded one of the audience.
"We can't do anything about it. Why don't you tell the police?"

Accommodating.
"Where is the man who runs this livery stable?" asked a large, flashy man in a tone of voice that was decidedly offensive to the boy in charge.
"He isn't in, sir, just now," replied the lad, "but if you are very hungry I can show you to a stall."

Stands Alone.
"I tell you I am proud of myself."
"You should be supremely happy."
"Why?"
"I have never observed that you have any competition."

Would Take a Day Off.
"Have you seen the 'Merry Widow' hat?"
"Those big ones?"
"Yes."
"I saw part of one. I didn't have time to look at all of it."

PERT PARAGRAPHS.

It is always a good job to make an abrupt end of a bad job.

The person who wants to be let alone is either mad or in love.

People have to become acquainted with luck before they believe in it, and they are lucky if they get a chance.

To a woman it always seems a sinful waste of money to pay taxes with it, and there are others.

Be calm, dear girl, and let who will be skittish. It is poise that counts.

When the bloused waist goes out of fashion, bloused hair comes sailing in.

Anyway, a wallflower is always sure of strong and steady backing.

If every gold mine turned out according to the prospects, we would have to be looking for some rarer metal for our circulating medium.

Strange that our enterprising cane manufacturers are not putting on the market a big stick purporting to be the Roosevelt variety.

ARTISTIC TASTE.

In This the French Are First and the Irish Come Next.

Artistic taste is due to temperament, and where this exists the simplest materials lend themselves to artistic combinations and beautiful effects.

The French excel in dainty, graceful designs because of their volatile, mirth loving temperaments. The Germans can never reach these heights because their temperaments are just the reverse, while it has been proved in several workrooms that, next to the French, the Irish temperament is the most artistic.

The more artistic the general training of a person the more ready are they to appreciate and profit by the fine productions of others; hence we are glad to see and grateful for the privilege of studying the "models" brought from Paris each season by the enterprising importers.

Twenty-five years ago in Paris and London the houses that catered to America and the colonies put aside for this trade any designs that were too extreme or "screaming" for the fastidious home buyers, says the Millinery Trade Review. Hot times have changed, and the American woman is now considered the best dressed in the world, and the leaders of American society are the women who dictate quite as much as the elite of France.

MINE TIMBERS.

They Add Eight Cents to the Cost of Each Ton of Anthracite.

The cost of every ton of anthracite is increased 8 cents by the expense of the mine timbers. To supply these timbers, says the Vegetarian Magazine, requires each year the product of approximately 150,000 acres of forest.

Timber is used for cross ties for train roads in the main haulage ways, as wooden rollers and as props. A set of gangway timber consists of two legs, commonly nine or ten feet long and about thirteen inches in diameter, and a collar six or seven feet long. These sets are placed on an average at intervals of five feet. One gangway frequently contains 1,000 sets, and ten gangways to a colliery is not an unusual number.

The average life of the timber is hardly above two years. Forty-five per cent of the timbers are destroyed by decay, while breakage, wear and insects destroy the remainder. By peeling the timbers and properly seasoning them and especially by giving them a treatment in oils or chemical salts their length of service is materially increased.

The Marble and the Pencil.

The marble trick is as old as the days of Aristotle. Cross the middle and fore fingers and roll a marble between them. The marble will feel like two, because it is being felt in an unconscious way. If a pencil is drawn between the crossed fingers the one pencil will feel like parallel bars. The same illusion may be worked by placing the pencil between the lips and then moving the under lip to one side, causing the pencil to feel like two. More curious than any of these is the one where the forefinger is crossed over the little finger behind the other two and then applied to the end of the nose. Not only can you feel two noses, but one of them seems to be about an inch longer than the other. This last sensation is caused by the fact that we do not ordinarily feel the edge of any object with these two fingers at the same time unless the part felt with the little finger projects beyond the part felt by the forefinger.—St. Louis Republic.

She Said So Anyway.

The young man who was endeavoring to win the favor of Bobby's pretty sister met the boy on the street one morning and greeted him with much cordiality.

"Er—do you think your sister was pleased to know I had called the other day?" he was at last forced to ask, bluntly, after several efforts to guide Bobby's conversation in that direction.

"Sure!" said Bobby, with gratifying promptness. "I know she was. I heard her say so."

"When she came home mother said, 'Mr. Brown called while you were out,' and she said: 'He did? Well, I'm glad of that.'"—Youth's Companion.

Ink on Leather.

For ink spots on leather chairs wash the spots with milk, renewing the milk till it is no longer stained and the spot on the leather has disappeared. Then wash the leather with warm water, and when dry polish it with a very little linseed oil and vinegar mixed in equal parts. The ink stain should be removed as quickly as possible, for if allowed to dry and harden it is doubtful whether you will ever be able to entirely remove it.

TIMELY WARNING.

Don't treat the house fly kindly. Or make of it a pet. But pat it with a lead slat. Or spread for it a net. We used to call it harmless. But now the doctor sees That on the padding of its feet It packs around disease.

Although it fits so lightly. The creature carries weight. With microbes it is laden. With germs as local freight. And when it bites a person. In payment it may leave A week or two of sickness. And thus its load relieve.

So the disease whose symptoms Are like a summer cold. May not come from exposure. As you have oft been told. The reason for the ailment May be a pesky fly. That went where there was sickness And got a fresh supply.

So of your pet aversions Just keep it on your list. And if it gets familiar. Why, slap it on the wrist. If when you are not looking To take a bite it tries. Request the fly to kindly Take some one of its size.

Might Break the Scales.
"The baby weighed just nine pounds."
"That is interesting, but why didn't somebody think to weigh the father?"

His Idea.
"Well, just what is a secret, anyway?"
"A thing to be kept!"
"Yes?"
"On tap!"
"Oh!"
"Until several people have ferreted it out!"
"Well?"
"And then it is published with big headlines."

Poor Start.
"He didn't have over $100 in money when he came to this country, and now he owns several farms, some bank stock and things like that."
"That isn't so bad. Still, $100 was something. I didn't have a cent when I came into this country."
"You? Where did you come from?"
"I was born here."

Needed Training.
"How did you get along with her father?"
"Only so-so."
"He is a very blunt and plain spoken man; always calls a spade a spade."
"I wouldn't mind that so much if he didn't go out of his way to look on a nice young man as a football."

Had No Secrets.
"I noticed the assessor looked you squarely in the eye all the while you were talking."
"Yes."
"It didn't discommode you?"
"Not a bit. I was only afraid he would look me in the pocketbook."

Wouldn't Wash It.
"What is that young man doing over there?"
"Trying to attract my attention with the handkerchief flirtation, I guess."
"You do not seem to be responding."
"No; I am not his laundress."

PERT PARAGRAPHS.

It might be wise to regard the good resolutions of others with charity, but your own with suspicion.

It may be all very well to want to get even, but lots of people want to get even, odd and then even again, which isn't Christian.
